Giorgio Armani is a designer who perfectly understands the elements of menswear. Each season he reinterprets his signature silhouette combining relaxed tailoring with classic Italian sportswear and knitwear, always with refined elegant touches and forward-looking fabric developments. There is also something elemental about the colours and fabrics of his timeless designs for Spring-Summer 2012. Tailoring and separates, crafted from specially treated materials in watery blues have a fluid feel. These are juxtaposed with jackets and trousers in every shade of grey, some with the matte finish of time-worn rock, others with the shine of finely polished minerals. Earthy brown leathers and flesh-like tones complete the palette.

For the iconic Armani Man, he is envisioned as a mythological ideal of masculinity born of the elements. He sets foot on the earth and falls in love with fire. Whose fire and passion persuades him not to melt away but instead to be transformed into rock. Discover the extraordinary short film at herculesuniversal.com.
